Interpretation:

A low platelet count, also called thrombocytopenia, and accompanying signs and symptoms may be caused by a number of conditions and factors. The causes typically fall into one of two general categories:

1. Disorders in which the bone marrow cannot produce enough platelets
2. Conditions in which platelets are used up (consumed) or destroyed faster than normal.

Examples of conditions causing a low platelet count include: Idiopathic thrombocytopenia (ITP), also known as immune thrombocytopenic purpura, viral infections such as mononucleosis, hepatitis, HIV or measles, Certain drugs, such as aspirin and ibuprofen; some antibiotics, Heparin-induced thrombocytopenia (HIT); Leukemia, lymphoma, or another cancer that has spread (metastasized) to the bone marrow; Aplastic anemia, Long-term bleeding problems (e.g., chronic bleeding from stomach ulcers); Sepsis; Cirrhosis; Autoimmune disorders, such as lupus, chemotherapy or radiation therapy, which may affect the bone marrow's ability to produce platelets, Platelet consumption like in DIC, TTP and, HUS can result in fewer circulating platelets in the blood and exposure to toxic chemicals, such as pesticides, arsenic, or benzene.
